Psychological Characteristics

Personality: Destiny is a complete mystery to all who know her, save Fate and Tomoe. She wears her emotions and moods on her sleeves, and has been known for sudden mood swings. It is almost impossible to guess what she will do next, one moment rubbing up against a dignitary, the next she has a knife at his neck. The only real way to get a hint at how she feels, would be to look at the plushies she carries with her. Their mood depicts her current emotional state to a person or group of people, so the better the expression, and the better her relationship.

But as a result of recent happenings on Lor, Destiny has become a bit easier to read. No longer worried over what others think of her, Destiny has become steadfast in both what she believes in, and what she knows is for the best. She cares really only for the safety of her people and her planet, worrying over them now for countless nights. Now she tends to get into more arguments with her brother which have began to eat her up on the inside, but she still loves her brother dearly.

- Likes: Plushies, her brother, Fate her bodyguard, shiny weapons, seeing her people at ease or comfortable, knowing her people are safe, her children
- Dislikes: eople that don't like plushies, her brother when he is upset, Losing to Fate, broken weapons, Arguments with her brother, the Mishhu.
- Goals: Oddly enough, to be respected as a great leader of her people, and to be remembered for all time. To make sure her people are safe and to aid the empire in the best way possible to fight against the Mishhu.

Pre-RP

After the death of her mother and father, Destiny is the younger sister of Tomoe , and surviving heir of the royal family. Together with the help of her brother, they have maintained the peace of her people, while at the same time, moving them forward at a more rapid pace then her parents would have ever believed. Destiny has constantly thought of her people with every decision she has made, showing great signs of leadership in times of great need. She has also looked to her brother and closest friend, Fate, when she has needed advice, and will in the future to come, in order to stop another exile from happening.

Since Yamataian contact her plans had gone downhill. Between the devastation of Lor, to the exodus of the Lorath people, she has had trouble. With the recent scandal that involved herself, she had to forcefully exile an entire house from her people, destroying one third of the government and losing a third of the population. Since then she has been invited up to the Fifth fleet's base of operations inside of the Lor nebula.

She was thought to be lost in YE 33 with the "Mihi'Ruda" but was in fact saved by a remaining crewmember when she fell unconscious. Stuffed into cryopod and shot into space, she drifted until YE 40 when she was recovered by the Exodus Fleet where she was rehabilitated and eventually found work enough to save money. She was able to sell off a few items and eventually buy herself a ship which allowed her to leave. Her time alone was short lived as she was attacked by pirates. She was able to fend them off but not before suffering damage to both herself and her ship, at which time she was picked up by a ship which belonged to Origin Industries. Her time amongst them led to a love of their mechs, and after she became a contractor for them, she eventually joined the crew of the OIF Karakoram.

Skills

Fighting

Destiny has mastered many forms of combat after intense hours of training with Fate, her bodyguard and close friend. Though still learning many things, she is Fate's equal in many aspects as well, even surpassing her in one or two fields. She is proficient with many types of weapons, almost all available to the Lorath, and is proficient in many styles of martial arts.

Entertainment

Of course, as a queen, she must know many forms of entertainment. From the most primal and seductive forms of entertainment, she knows many different forms of dancing, her favorite being her blade dances. She can also sing, though she claims she isn't very good, and can also play a few instruments, including the harp.

Survival and Military

Often, Destiny leaves with the warrior house during a survival test. She likes to be able to keep up with the others, in the off chance of her being stranded in the field. She is able to hunt for her self, build a shelter, camouflage herself effectively, find water, and navigate herself.

Leadership

Like any good leader, Destiny is a very efficient speaker. She has moved people more then once to ovations from her speeches. She is rather intelligent when it comes to knowing her generals, and the morale of her troops. She is a good diplomat, though she is often helped by her brother, more times then not by him pulling her off of Another diplomat.

Art and Vocations

Destiny is an artist, a talent gained from the hours her mother made her practice. Her favorite form of art, comes in the form of plushie making. All of the plushies she carries around with her are made of her own hands and workings, each a beautiful craft

Culinary

Destiny loves to cook. Before her mother had died, She had intended for Destiny to live a home life, hoping for her to never have to fight. This is why she pushed Destiny to learn so many domestic things. Destiny is rather good in the kitchen, or at least was. Since the death of her parents, she has not been allowed in the kitchens, as it was seen as wrong for the queen to cook.

Communications

Destiny is a great speaker, able to easily piece together elegant lines that flow from her easily. She is able to issue commands with ease that are simple and precise for those she is ordering to follow.
