In his off-time Louis, a social person that likes to meet new people and hear their stories and if allowed to record them and release them for others to hear. Despite his social personality he has had little luck with romance due to his work and hobbies consuming most of his time, but he is unwilling to give up on love.

History

Louis London was born in 7D 1M YE 10 in the city of Tania, on the planet Yamatai. Born into a family with the long-standing tradition of joining the scientific fields of medicine and genetic engineering. His early life was marked by chronic misbehavior largely attributed due to his parents' work-related absence while they were employed by the PNUgen Corporation. This behavior saw a decline after an incident of vandalism in his early teens when he met Silas Tomson, a well-known but eccentric journalist, instead of pressing charges Silas made a deal to have the boy work as his assistant. After several years of Louis working under Silas and the exposure of PNUgen Corporation's role in the Great Plague of YE 08, he decided to seriously pursue a career in journalism himself. Choosing to attend a university for proper study his grades were average, and he graduated with little fanfare but was able to find work quickly as a freelance reporter.

Feeling restless after spending his whole life on Yamatai Louis began to resettle himself every few years to another planet. While only there for a relatively short time Louis made it a point to research and understand the local culture and even interviewing members of the community that he thought had interesting stories to tell. Eventually he found himself on Essia and became part of a group of refugees fleeing the occupation to the NDC. Luckily, he was able to find work with New Dusk Conclave Broadcasting not long after arriving in Obsidian City.
