Physical Description

Rose Ironhart looks much like her sister Thorn. She has the same green eyes, the same brown hair habitually cut once with a knife. However, that is where the similarity ends.

Her face is is distinguished by high cheekbones and a narrow, squared jawline, with a rounded chin and thin nose highlighting the lips. She managed to retain large, curious eyes and a dimpled grin. Her body has a powerful skeletal structure, if it seems a little thin on muscles, though she has very little problem lifting well over a quarter again her weight if she lifts with the legs. While her catlike saunter accentuates the wide hips and narrow waist on this young woman, any Yamataians would instantly recognize that she's visibly spent her life in unreliable artificial gravity.

She tends to dress like a high schooler, wearing loose, comfortable jeans or skintight leggings, often leggings under torn or otherwise damaged jeans, and tee shirts with no corporate or other logos on them, in dark colors. She does like art, and skin tight tees to show the curvature of her back, hips, and C-cup breast.

Her smell is nothing special, stinking like a human, though she is religiously clean and one of the few minor pleasures that she allows herself is a pomegranate scented soap. The voice on the comms is often described as small and childlike, though very scratchy with a deep gravel. She can often be found wearing at least the base layer to a skin contact EVA suit that highlights and compresses her thin figure, and is often wearing 9-pocket BDUs over the lower half of her suit. Due to her own self consciousness about her body, she also wears the leg armor under her BDUs to make her hips appear wider, though the effect will not pass a scrutinizing eye.

Personality

Bold and reckless, constantly in pursuit for new knowledge and skills. She is easily bored and finds herself actively seeking out a task or activity to occupy her hands or mind. She does love to read, and her ability to get into dangerous situations undetected before leaving with extremely sensitive or valuable information is unparalleled.

She has the ability to switch between her default pride and integrity personality and a “lost slave, pity me” honeypot with no effort or time, but both presentations are fronts for the intelligence and curiosity that overwhelm her thoughts. She is extremely reserved about her past and can be easily triggered involving traumatic events. Though most will note a bouncy, excitable character with certain childlike tendencies and no concept of fear.

She does, however show emotional problems consistent with minor PTSD, with nightmares, flashbacks, and some paranoia, alongside pathological task avoidance and an inferiority complex. However, a long conversation with her will reveal clinical depression and suicidal tendencies.

Of recent, she has devoted herself to her wife and children fully, retiring from her position as head of Advanced Research and Development to take up teaching full time at Osman University, inso doing, giving herself more time with her family.

History

Rose Ironhart's official story outside of the OSO is that she is the sister of Thorn Ironhart. Within the OSO, however, this is not entirely true, and an open secret.

In actuality, on XX/X YE 39, Thorn Ironhart was killed in action, and recieved a soul transfer into a loaner body belonging to Sarah Pine, until the "Rose" body was ready. This took about a week. In the growing romance between the two, Thorn felt that she had "blossomed," and was no longer a thorn in someone's side. However, that part of her would remain as a part of her.

While romantic, it doesn't explain why Rose and Thorn are different people. In YE 39, Rose Ironhart repaired the dead body of Thorn, copied her mind over, and sent the smaller version of herself to explore the stars as herself, while she continued performing her duties with the OSO.

Since then, she has started teaching Astrophysics at Osman University, developed multiple world changing technologies, and married Sarah Pine.

Due to purple kaserine and creative use of hemosynthetic prosthetics, she is the mother of Sarah Pine's son, Michael Pine, and the father of Sarah's triplets, Thistle, Yilan, and Nadine.

She is currently dealing with her recent widowing, her wife, Sarah Pine having died from a virophagic bacterium called Sarah's Disease.
