Physical Description

A tall male Separa’shan Pythus his body “standing” at 6’5” with light skin, short black hair, green eyes, and a gray tail with dark brown bands along the length of it. At first glance, his body has a series of scars along the front of his body along with a prosthetic left hand and forearm with a metal cap on replacing the end of his tail.

Personality

Since the accident, Zach has become shy, quiet, and uncomfortable when around a large group. Before though he was very social having been popular in a large circle of friends and acquaintances. Even before speaking to him, it is obvious that Zach is self-conscious about his scars making attempts to hide them even when around close friends. It's is only when Zach is repairing or running maintenance on a vehicle of some kind, he is calm and relaxed even easier to talk to. When it comes to his studies, Zach works hard trying to achieve high marks in the hopes that he will be able to take control of the family business and maybe even contributing to the liberation of his homeworld.

History

Zach was born in YE 20 on Essia, born into a family of artisans that specialized in the construction and maintenance of luxury spacecraft. Growing up he was very involved with the family trade and decided early on to continue the tradition. Things were going smoothly as Zach was studying advanced engineering until in YE 35 he was involved in a vehicular accident that left him in critical condition that required the end of his tail and everything below his left elbow to be amputated. Although he survived it took years for Zach to recover enough to return to an active life but he has had difficulty recovering from the emotional trauma. During the Kuvexia invasion and occupation he and his family fled to the New Dusk Conclave seeking refugee and after arriving on Sirris VI his mother and father worked to re-establish the family business of building and maintaining luxury spacecraft. In early YE 41 Zach decided to continue his education at Osman University: Something is a Mist while working part-time as a repair technician for the revived business.
