Social nature: Quite indifferent towards people she doesn't fully know, as her childhood means she is not so trusting of others. She has a very soft spot towards people who have lost their way due to warfare and corruption, as this was how she ended up in her current position. As she is a relatively new recruit, she is still very hesitant before making any offensive action.

History

Aliza Scorn was born in YE 19.

Aliza was left orphaned and alone at a very young age, having lost all her family in the midst of war.

She was taken into an orphanage, living in the most corrupt part of the lower city, surrounded by crime. The staff members at the orphanage doubled as gang members, selling high-class drugs, employing the very kids they nurture and thrusting them into the life of crime.

At age 12, Aliza was deemed ready for a life of crime, transporting harsh chemicals and drugs to where they were needed, doing the bidding of her higher-ups.

During a heist on an opposing gang's territory, Aliza gets hit in the ankle, slowing her escape, and allowing her to get captured while her fellow group members leave her for dead.

Months pass, and her captors hooked her up to a hyper life-support system, whilst they harvested her organs and limbs to sell to corrupt upperclassmen. A form of extreme torture, as Aliza could experience every minute of it.

After some time, she was deemed obsolete, and her body was to be thrown into a container set for incineration. A custodian for the group misunderstood, and dumped the body in a wrong container, filled with a rare drug.

The gang are caught off guard as a SWAT team move in to investigate their actions, and after mowing down the gang leaders, find the containers. To their surprise, they find a young girl, barely clinging to life within one of the three cases with the rare drug, her hair stained pink by the strange chemicals.

Aliza was rushed to the medical facility, taken to a more advanced sector upon higher orders. The doctors discover a strange twist in her genetic make-up as the rare drug, now dubbed "neuropyzine", seeped into her system, allowing her body to assimilate any number of augmentations without a chance of tissue rejection.

Overjoyed, the doctors began melding the girl to their most advanced, experimental military-grade augmentations.

Due to her state as a military-grade cyborg, Aliza was set to join the Marines, to aid them at all costs, while uncovering many conspiracies and threats, all the while making it her goal to rid Nepelesia of corruption.

Now a fresh recruit, she is eager to prove her worth all the while coning to terms with her abilities, continually learning new techniques and skills, not yet known to the rest of her crew.
