Character Description

Belyra is a short, thin woman, with a very womanly slant to her very childlike body. She's right about 4' 11", and though she doesn't tell people, she weighs in right around 90 pounds, with some fairly blatant womanly curves on a smooth, clean skinned frame. She has a full, friendly mouth, complementing her dark, murky brown eyes in a friendly face. Belyra is a very shy, uncertain person, who somehow manages to be completely professional, resulting in her actually managing to get all of the way through medical school and into the military despite her overwhelming fear of Marines, though more specifically just soldiers in general.

Skill Areas

- Communications: Fluent in Trade, Yamataian, Abwehran, Seraph, and Ly\'thir
- Medical - Belyra is a medical specialist, originally trained in surgery and general battlefield trauma medicine, but specialized into prosthetic attachment.
- Maintenance & Repair - She\'s a practiced mechanic, though not in the sense most people know. She happens to be a prosthetics specialist, and knows how to diagnose and fix problems with the prosthetics on her patients just as well as the patients themselves.
- Biology - Belyra has done plenty of classes on xenobiology, just on the general idea that she has no idea where she\'ll be, at least for sure, ten years from now, and she might need to be able to work on non-human bodies as well.
- Knowledge - Belyra has been reading for so long, and so much, that you can never tell what random little medical fact she\'ll happen to know. It\'s usually not enough to solve something on it\'s own, but she\'s full of all sorts of random facts.
