Personality

Easton is a brash man, due to his young age. He is always ready to prove himself, which causes some trouble with his commanding officers. Nothing he got permanent write ups for, but enough to get chewed out. Mainly he thinks he sometime knows better than his commanding officer do.

While he is bold, he also works cautiously as the ordinance and explosives expert. A wrong movement or a fast movement and everyone goes up in an explosion.

He is a closet nerd. He hides it from others, but when he goes off duty by himself, he immerses himself in the latest VR games and comics. He is a amateur computer enthusiast and a early adopter of technology. Not a expert in computers, but knowledgeable enough to get himself into computers.

History

Easton does not have much of a history. He always liked blowing things up, getting in trouble as a child when he and his friends would make makeshift explosives and detonate them in abandoned buildings. A couple of times they had run ins with the law. usually they would scurry and run and hide. While there were some close calls, hr never actually got caught.

Eventually he graduated and joined the police force. He knew he wasnt one for higher learning and he didnt want to go in to the military. The police was the next best thing. After patrolling the streets for a bit, He found out about the DTR's and applied for that, listing his explosive knowledge. The training he received during boot camp filled in his gaps of knowledge make him a expert in explosive and ordinance matters.
