Calculated, and vicious at times she is usually soft-spoken and friendly. Her studies and commission as an officer quickly ended the relationship she had with former Ganger turned NSMC Marine Louis Fekete though up until recently they stayed in good contact.

History

Irene is the sister of Ensign Leventé Barná, the younger sister of the siblings. Not a particularly strong fighter, she learned how to talk her way out of most situations, usually by manipulating information to provide a favorable outcome. She first had left her brother after the fall of Rok'Veru to go to school. Only feeding her brother brief bits of information, telling him she was in school to become a teacher. She joined the Nepleslian military academy as soon as she could, scoring in the top 5 in her class. Irene seemed to naturally be drawn to leading men, and making difficult decisions. Falling into habits she learned, she read journals from her Father Miklos Barná a seasoned pilot and NCO in the Nepleslian Navy.

Irene's first official station was on board two separate light transport ships, running logistical missions in the kikyō sector. Her promotion to Lieutenant came after her quick thinking and decisive orders, saved her crew from a free spacer's ambush, managing to shake small group just barely surviving. The ship had been damaged and most of her crew injured, including herself. Shortly after her recovery, Irene's promotion, gave her the chance to serve on a Na-S3-1a Jackdaw class heavy Corvette, (Nss Legion), serving on the ship for two years before again taking action on several occasions, dealing with freespace raids, as well as kuvexian mercenary groups, attacking supply lines. After her two years on the Legion, an opportunity presented itself, in the form of a promotion, though the catch was being assigned to a newer Carnivore class escort cruiser in Nepleslia's 3rd fleet, the NSS "Wrath of Nepleslia". A much larger ship with significantly more responsibility and a veteran crew pulled from older ships in the fleet, Irene knew with the War raging on, it was unlikely this ship and her crew would not avoid the front, Nor would her old ship. Taking the chance to be an executive officer on a Cruiser was certainly not what she thought it would be, though now after a year of service as an officer, now on the "Wrath of Nepleslia". she began to settle into the title, if only at the surface. It did help that her initial Captain of the NSS "Legion" transferred to the new ship with her, having Captain Amir Al Yusef, at her side and the overall trust he had in his XO. Her crew had finally begun to see why the young woman received the rank and title aboard "their" ship, through her actions and interactions with crew members and other officers alike, they saw she didn't just say one thing. She followed every order and promise with action.

During the battle of Nataria. Irene became acting captain of the NSS Wrath of Nepleslia. Due to the death of Captain Al-Yusef. Upon her return to Rok'Veru, She was informed of her new station as Grand Admiral of the 3rd assault fleet. A heavy responsibility given to such a young officer.
