- Hair Color: Brown
- Hairstyle: Short, tight and off the ears, the top of the head has slightly longer hair with a hard part to the right side.

Personality

Leventé can be calculated when work is involved, only serious when a mission or his nation is brought up. Rather relaxed, he is known for being confident to the point of arrogance, though he's yet to be proven wrong, there is another side, that the confidence masks. The loss of his friend and Gunner Elise, with the addition of the cybernetics the procedure unfortunately caused him to lose most of the memories of what happened in his crash, now he receives flashes of detailed if not visceral flashbacks because of it.. A creature of habit he enjoys staying fit, i.e working out and training in hand to hand combat, for a member of the DION Navy, some question why he is not with the ground forces anymore. Keeping in shape primarily through learning various traditions and styles of martial skill, fairly isolated, he can be a bit... Too honest. Which leads him into trouble.

History

Born on Rok'Veru he moved away shortly before it's fall. Moving to one of many hive cities, in the imperium, not long after he enlisted into the imperial navy, quickly realising that piloting gave him the most excitement and adrenaline he'd ever experienced. Leventé began sneaking into training planes, prior to coming of age for such jobs. An orphan after the fall of Rok'Veru the marines first became his home, after a failed flight, and subsequent death of his Gunner, and the loss of his right eye. Leventé requested a transfer to the Navy . Once old enough to properly pilot, he took a liking first to the viper gunship, then staying with the hammerhead type bomber, causing many major targets to fear the him of the main plasma weapon systems of his bomber, during the civil war and subsequent rebellions, and occasional skirmishes. He rose through the ranks, becoming a junior officer prior to his exchange to the SAoY.

As of the year YE42, on his time aboard the YSS Tokyo, Leventé became a Married man. To a Senti pilot, and by her customs. They are now together.
