Physical Description

©CRYSTALINK421

At 187cm Wyatt stands just short of 6'2“ with a rather toned and athletic let not overly bulked out body partially due to his combined heritage of the universe's beefcakes and then their much more elegant counterparts and mostly due to his intense workout regime, as a part of their synthetic nature it is difficult for a Minkan to gain bulk so many just get it built into their design but not Wyatt, his body was an exact replica of the less-built man he was when enlisting.

Wyatt's tanned skin is wrapped over his lean frame, noticably broad shoulders and defined chest that taper into his 6-pack-strapped abdomen before flaring out slightly into his hips and surprisingly round yet still rather toned flank which clearly comes from some part of his elven blood, both his arms and legs are at a similar level of athleticism where they clearly have a lot of power behind them yet still manage to not bulk out his frame too much - maintaining a physique built to wear a Mindy.

Much like his father Wyatt's hair is naturally a brilliant shade of copper from the short yet wavy shock of hair atop his head, the spruce mustache he decided to grow out after the Kaiyo's 14th mission to anywhere else there is hair on his body - Wyatt's knife-tipped ears are less pronounced that his father's though still noticeable and offer a slight advantage in hearing over normal human-style ears, his almond-shaped eyes are a bright amber hue and seem to change consistency with his various moods, his facial features strike a fine line between angular and hardy due to his bi-species heritage.

Being somebody ready to jump to action at a moment's notice Wyatt usually wanders around in his skin-tight and rather revealing SAINT Operative Field Suit, Type 31 with a Type 40 Plate Bearing Vest over the top for added protection and a SIZI M38 SDR strapped to one of his strong thighs though to avoid seeming paranoid to the ship's crew a projection of the Star Army Duty Uniform, Type 35 modified with cargo pants and alternate boots - otherwise he is wearing a non-projected version of this uniform or the Star Army Exercise Uniform, Type 40 with compression shorts or leggings beneath the shorts.

Personality

Wyatt is a “to the point” kind of person who puts up a gruff yet professional exterior, he is one to speak his mind openly, yet he still shows respect and courtesy to those who deserve it and although this can end up rubbing some folk the wrong way, he knows that is tough to deal with so he tries to tone it down whenever the minkan is not on a mission - his choice of wording is usually very deliberate and proper though Wyatt has been trying to tone this down a bit when not on a mission.

A trait that seems to be in most (if not all) of the Alder men is that they have trouble expressing emotions, they do not wish to burden others with such trivial matters, Wyatt does not want to grow to be the bastard of a man his father was and is trying to change for the sake of himself and those around him. He cares deeply for the crew of the YSS Kaiyō II and has accepted them as his new family, seeing as his old one has all but fallen into disarray - lately things have gotten better though and Wyatt is slowly becoming more emotive in no small part due to his girlfriend's love and the love he feels for her.

He is a loyal soldier through and through, but not quite to a fault, give him an objective and you’ll see it done one way or another, the means may not be the most orthodox, but they tend to justify the end result, adaptability is one of his positive traits alongside the fact that he never expects a so much as a thank you for carrying out orders.

He is a natural born fighter and a survivor, even though he fights like a lone wolf and has a drive for self preservation he will defend his crew like they were his cubs.

History

Wyattali Alder was born YE 14 in Kyoto, the son of an Ex-SAoY Elven Sniper for a father and an Ex-NSMC Pilot for a mother, the halfbreed was a near perfect copy of his copper-haired, knife-eared father before him besides a few features that came with his mother's Nepleslian blood - it's not something Wyatt speaks of much but he learnt from a young age that very little pleased his father, much less their marriage but the couple tried to keep it together for the sake of their young son yet it would all be in vain, as the boy grew he would also come the the realization that a lot more than his physical appearance was inherited.

Alder men had a rough history with emotions, though they were never a lot to half-ass anything thrown their way.

Being no exception to this rule Wyatt constantly pushed himself in everything he did, a quiet child but not an un-talented one - average in most academic areas except for his physical education and anything involving computers, a knack that came rather unexpectedly but one he embraced. In an effort to impress his father in maybe the only way Wyatt thought might work he enlisted in the Star Army of Yamatai as a Star Army Rikugun marksman at the start of YE 33 despite the power armour scores he received at Black Sands Test Range that made people suggest he maybe think of becoming a pilot, but found out the tough way nothing pleased his bastard of a father anymore, so Wyatt decided to just knuckle down and focus solely on his new line of work.

During his time hiding in the mud with a long-range rifle Wyatt fell in with a squad that would later become the foundation of the Rangers but by that time he had moved on to a more ship-based occupation as Star Army Infantry, after being tossed between a few ships the half-elf in a Minkan body found himself assigned to the 2nd iteration of the YSS Kaiyō some time before it's 10th mission. Wyatt did not participate in any missions however until mission 12 due to some misplaced legal documentation.

IN RP

Kaiyo-ii Mission 12: Wyatt helped scout the beach for a bit before Shasse Emiko's curse fuelled blood-lust threatened to overtake her, Emiko-Hei and Eden-Shosa extracted through the Aether-sphere that surrounded the planet and fell radio silent. Most presumed the two were dead, but Wyatt managed to fly closer and establish through telekinesis that they were alive before he followed them through. He emerged naked next to them and dove about the Kaiyo-ii when it swooped in to save them, upon entering the ship he wrapped his jacket around his lower waist and rushed to the bridge, where he manned a station that helped speed up the process of them leaving the Aether-Sphere behind them.

Kaiyo-ii Mission 13: Wyatt entered from the heavens with the rest of Team Kraken and was ordered to secure a cave with Eden-Shosa and Mark-Hei. The world began to tear apart around the fireteam so they fled to space, Wyatt gained a broken left arm in the process yet continued to fight on as allies fell - he even managed to nab a Kuviexian helmet as a trophy before the mission ended.

Havok Festival 40: Wyatt participated in some light ground racing before he became aware of a situation in the VIP Area, the minkan raced his bike across the desert and took one final jump off of it before crashing through a reinforced window. He then helped provide backup as the SAoY personnel escaped in a shuttle.

Kaiyo-ii Mission 14: Wyatt breached the enemy ship with the rest of the away team and rendered the ship's MEGAMI unconscious before attempting to bring her back to the Kaiyo-ii when she unfortunately expired due to countermeasures outside their control, he then helped perform security on the other, still alive prisoner before being rounded up for a second assault. During the second assault Wyatt pinged an enemy with his bow before managing to get into the enemy's maintenance ducts, fooling sensors and making his way to the Bridge where he became a spinning ball of death for everyone but the most important people in the room - managing to help Eden fight off IYS Eve's influence before rendering the hostile universe's leader unconscious and teleporting back to the Kaiyo-ii.

Relationship: Wyatt decided to finally approach the ship's newest medic, Saya, who he had began to develop feelings for - the first and only real time the half-breed has felt infatuation for another human being so he asked her out and she agreed, they went on a date before his departure for saint retraining and when he returned the two decided to just see how the whole boyfriend/girlfriend thing worked out for them.

Post Mission 14: Wyatt retrained to become a Star Army Intelligence Operative and missed out on the Kaiyo-ii's fifteenth mission to earn the black panel of SAINT

Relationship: With an unexpected daughter on the way following the YE41 End-of-year celebrations, Wyatt decided it was as good a time as any to propose to Fujiwara Saya, abandoning the surname he carried little love for and filing for it to be changed to his wife's instead - she said yes though the recently married couple decided to wait a few days before telling others.

Relationship: In YE 42 Wyatt's Wife, unborn daughter and a few other crewmates were captured, the former testing Wyatt's ability to put everything behind his job due to the stress of the whole situation.

Mission 22: Wyatt perished early into the mission from a combination of his rifle malfunctioning and fatigue leading to his sidearm not being ready when he most needed it.

Mission 23: Wyatt managed help to free his family, alongside the other captives, and suffered mostly superficial damage to his upper back.
