Personality

Klaus is a fun-loving, loyal, earnest, understanding and a tad socially awkward young man. He always seeks to help any way he can and can be counted as a shoulder to cry on. While most of his personality can be attributed to his youth in Ralt, it also comes from the idolization of his father and grandfather, the men who raised him, taught him how to fight and the values of honor. Although he himself was never left wanting, he cares little for luxurious life styles and enjoys the simpler things in life.

Despite being calm and collected in almost every situation, matters concerning of women and romance leave him stumped and nervous as he has no experience to fall back on. Klaus is a man of justice. To him the greatness of Yamatai stems from its just rulers and just law system. To him there is no higher calling than serving justice, for justice is the protection of the innocents. He can always stand as an impartial judge.

His motivation for joining Star Army is primarily a sense of duty for the empire and to protect its citizens. Having been taught the value of hardwork early in life, he understands struggling for success and he is very determined to succeed, whether it be in training, battle or simple games.

He is usually an understanding man, who enjoys learning and interacting with people from other cultures. However he DESPISES the NMX, as they represent the antithesis of his own beliefs. To Klaus the only actions suitable against the NMX are EXTERMINATION.

Interests: Swordsmanship, narrative forms of media (books, movies, etc.), jazz, philosophy.

Likes: Good food, sparring, help others with their problems, cute girls who kick ass, protecting others

Dislikes: Bullies, loud music clubs, NMX, being unable to help others.

History

Klaus was born in YE 20 in the city of Ralt in Year-End's celebration. Born to a soldier father and a member of Ralt's troupe, he lived happily until his father died in the first NMX war. As Klaus's father was his hero, his loss took him to a spiral of depression. He began to feel bitterness and anger at the Empire and the royal family for sacrificing his father. However his grandfather stopped that way of thinking by taking Klaus to meet some of his friends who also lost their whole families.

After hearing the stories of lost families, broken friendships, fatherless children and suffering that occurred to so many, he felt ashamed. There he was whining about how unfair it was, when there are people who lost so much more. He was spitting on the sacrifice his father had made. He quickly apologized to his grandfather for his attitude, and made the pledge that he would one day become a proud member of the Star Army of Yamatai. His grandfather quickly put him through the wringer training him on swordsmanship, martial arts and philosophy. As soon as he was of age he joined the Star Army of Yamatai.
