History

Family

The Koguchi family is a mother, father and a son.

- Koguchi Yuno - mother
- Koguchi Ryushi - father
- Koguchi Eizo - son

Pre-RP

Eizo lead an average childhood, even though both his parents were in the star army they managed to spend a lot of time together, but as Eizo got older his parents had to be deployed more and more until it was only a couple of times a years. While this was going on Eizo had learnt to take care of himself and was in schooling so was learning what would be valuable for his future.

Eizo always seemed like a quite child and a good child while growing up he would ignore people who fought with him, telling them to be quiet and walking away, up until one time where he just seemed he couldn't take it anymore the person who had punched him that time was taken home to rest and had the week off after the attack of Eizo's darker side. After this time Eizo's parents taught him how to handle the anger and rage that had building in him, he handled it at school as the assaults came harder on him as people were angry that he hurt their friend and also to try and get him expelled from the school. He waited until he got home and went to the dummy that his parents had bought to him then he spent as long as he needed to cool off.

He got used to this life understanding that his parents needed to go, they were helping everyone while away on deployment. He always admired his parents and wanted to be just like them, as he grew up he joined the academy and trained to be a soldier for the army his family has been apart of. While at the academy he found a use for his anger and frustration in his training, when practicing with weapons his anger helped him focus the gun or blade to be more an extension of himself rather than a tool to be used, he knew that it was bad to think this way but it helped his inner turmoil and calmed him when he used anger in his training.

After graduation Eizo started his career as infantry, he joined a ship and started on what he believed was the way to help the innocent, the first mission was an investigate mission on a unknown planet. Eizo went down with the other infantry to make sure everything was safe, the atmosphere was breathable so Eizo took off his helmet so he could look around with his own eyes not the suit. He was reckless as he looked around with the others because he didn't have a helmet on when the wildlife attacked the crew big beasts that charged at them, Eizo was one of the unlucky ones that got knocked over by one of the creatures, before he could do anything he was clawed at, a deep mark across his face and armour.

Eizo said he wanted to keep the scars across his face as a reminder to himself that this isn't a fantasy and you do get hurt. He continued going around with that crew until his 20th birthday when he returned to see his parents and have some rest before starting his campaign again.
