History and Background

In early YE 43, Motoyoshi Kaoru and Motoyoshi Tachiko, the daughters of Ketsurui-Motoyoshi Katsuko, came together to collaborate on another venture company for the Yugumo Corporation. They wanted to promote the music they were passionate about, so they assembled a team from within the Yugumo Corporation to form YTP Entertainment. The infamous party girls of the Motoyoshi Clan put the wheels in motion and the Yugumo Corporation came through with the rest. The two sisters even convinced their bookworm sister Motoyoshi Naoko to join them on the project in hopes to bring her out of her shell.

The goal of YTP Entertainment was to provide the investment and future in artists of Yamataian pop and other genres of music. They were quick to pull in some established groups that were already formed and working under other smaller labels and started to work with them to promote and improve their chances of success in the entertainment industry.
