

Cruiser-type Storage Bay

Cruiser Class storage bays are second only to Capital-Class Storage Bays in terms of volume, and size. While not as comparatively large as their mammoth brethren, these bays are still large enough to hold the necessary supplies to keep a crew and ship going.

Deck 1-2: Cargo Bay

The cargo storage facilities are optimized for capacity, safety and ease of cargo access. The walls are riddled with honey-comb storage compartments used to keep the cargo secure and well organized. Robotic Assists are available in form of robotic arms running along tracks upon the face of the walls. These arms will select the designated cargo from the hold where it is placed on waiting grav pallets or lifts. A series of work elevators and catwalks are also available for use by staff.
