Description

Coveralls are one-piece garments that cover the body from the neck to the ankles, with long sleeves and pant legs. Coveralls can be made from a variety of materials, including cotton, polyester, and nylon, and can be found in a range of colors and styles to suit different needs and preferences.

Usage

Coveralls are most commonly used as protective clothing in hazardous or dirty environments, where they can help to prevent injuries and keep clothing clean. They are also useful for tasks that involve handling materials that could stain or damage regular clothing, such as paint, oil, or chemicals.

In the Star Army role-playing game, coveralls may be worn by characters who work in a variety of professions, including mechanics, scientists, and engineers. They may also be used as a practical and functional outfit for characters who are involved in physical labor or activities, such as construction or exploration.
