

Nekovalkyrja Service Pistol, Type 28

The Type 28 NSP is an energy pistol made in large quantities by Ketsurui Zaibatsu for use as a main sidearm for the Star Army of Yamatai. Its manufacturer nomenclature is the Ke-W2-1 series.

History

The Type 28 NSP is the successor to the highly successful Type 27 NSP produced by Ketsurui Zaibatsu the previous year. While the two weapons share many similarities, their parts (including magazines) were not interchangeable because the pistol has been completely redesigned. Changes included a more compact body and internal components, new materials, a rear-mounted battery (the 27 had the battery in the stock), repositioned light and laser buttons, sights, a trigger guard, and the removal of one safety. The display on the back of the 27 was replaced by a simple shot counter on the BR-28 magazine itself; this allows for soldiers to quickly check the charge of battery magazines without inserting them into a weapon.

The Star Army distributed millions of Type 28 service pistols to its soldiers and they are proving popular among both the Nekovalkyrja and humans due to the improved design, though some preferred the Type 27's more complex electronic display.

Production of the Type 28 ended in YE 30 when it was succeeded by the Nekovalkyrja Service Pistol, Type 30. In YE 33, a newer variant in the design lineage, the Nekovalkyrja Service Pistol, Type 33, became the primary sidearm for the Star Army.

Description

The NSP is very lightweight and extremely rugged (especially for an energy weapon) and can perform in extreme conditions (after long submersion in water or ice, covered in mud, after being dropped a few decks, etc.). The grip is designed for a Nekovalkyrja standard 3-fingered hand, but replacement grips for human-type hands are very easily installed by removing the two screws that hold the grip assembly on. The standard grip is made of polished walnut.

Like its predecessor, the Type 28 NSP features an integrated laser sight and tactical flashlight under the barrel that run on an internal battery. This internal battery lasts over 10 hours (using both the laser and the light) without magazine power.

The NSP has three firing modes, pulse, heavy, and stun. Modes are selected by a switch on the gun's left side. In pulse mode, pulling the trigger halfway fires a single shot. Fully pulling the trigger fires until the trigger is released. The weapon's heavy mode expends 5 times as much energy, for a grenade-like effect. Stun mode fires a scalar pulse designed to temporarily overcome and disable the target's nervous system and works on both organics and electronics. Pulling the trigger lightly fires enough scalar_waves to disable an average human without permanent damage. Pulling firmly fires enough to disable most Nekovalkyrja.
