☐ More About Ocean Day

Ocean Day ³⁾ falls on 7日 7月 ⁴⁾ and is a joyous day to celebrate the life within the many seas, oceans, and even waterways of the Yamatai Star Empire. No seafood is eaten on this day, stuffed toys that look like sea life are given and received, and those of the Yamatai Star Empire flock to the beach and ocean.

☐ Traditions

Ocean Day is a day to enjoy the ocean, so everyone is motivated to go to the beach on this day or out to sea!

Sailboats, yachts, and other boats are often decorated and dressed up on this day and in the evening, many seaside cities and towns have Boat Parades, which are a sight to behold and an utter delight for all ages.

Those that live nearby rivers that lead to the sea often put morsels of food and treats on small, handmade boats that are usually about the size of a shoebox. These little boats are said to ward off bad luck, but is widely regarded as a pleasure activity that brings people together while making the little boats and setting them on the river together.

On the beach a game named the chop-chop game or 🍉 suikawari is played in which a 🍉 watermelon is chopped by hand by Yamataians while being blindfolded and after being spun about three times. Those with baseline Human strength are given a stick by which to chop-chop the watermelon.

Another tradition of this holiday is the making of 🎎shide, which are zig-zag, white, paper chains. These are strung up over doorways and trees facing the ocean, beckoning for the warm ocean breeze to come hither.

📁 Gifts

Perhaps the second most ubiquitous gift given and received on this day are oceanic mammalian 🐬 plushies. Black and white 🐬 orca, grey 🐬 humpback whales, multi-colored 🐙 octopus, blue 🐬 dolphins, 🐧 penguins, and greenish 🐢 turtles are the most often gifted plushies.
